The Week In Society.

For the first time this winter the mer-ry jingle of sieigh bells has been heard in this city, and nature has supplied a good many entertainments without the aid of a fierist or a catarer. Every young creature has enjoyed herself or himself to the fullest, and not one idle moment has been had, the only unsociable thing being the sidewalks, which on Thursday morning told you curtly not to call again.

morning told you curtly not to call again. What shall be said in the review of the past week? It has been a busy one, and those who have no liking for a rush have a right to complain at the multi-tudinous array of social events Monday and Friday. The gayety of the week was continuous and varied, with perhaps the exception of Tuesday. It took all forms and enveloped all classes. The reason society is traveling at its fastest page is that it is only a scant two weeks ce is that it is only a scant two weeks until Ash Wednesday will put a quietus on social doings and the worn-out society maid and matron will be able to get a much-needed rest before the first Lentern reason. But one woman will not even get that, for she said at one of the largest tens last week that she would then rush her fect off going to church, and the next moment told her friend near her in conadence that it was the fashion in this

Talking about church, my mind is, of course, associated with clergymen, and perhaps every one does not know that it was one of the cloth who undertook, in Philadelphia the other day, so a fellowreporter from that city tells me, to pub-lish "Who's Who," of the Four Hundred. As we all know Philadelphia is noted for its exclusive and aristocratic social set, what was his surprise to find one morn-ing he had made many glaring mistakes, but it made charming gossip for the five-

By the by, I heard, whie drinking a social cup one day, that at one of the large entertainments lately, a young girl wore a beautiful evening dress, but her feet were unsightly, she having forgotten to were unsignly, she having another, be-take off her rubbers, while another, be-coming panie stricken by the rush of the day, came without her belt. This re-minds me of a tale I was told of a Rich-mond girl who went to her sister's wed-ding in her bed-room slippers.

Mr. William Palmer, Jr., led the Richmond German Club dance Monday night, by way of a change, Colonel Jo Lane Stern being out of the city, and proved himself a delightful substitute, introducing many charming figures.

Talking about germans, really in some places an enormous amount is being spent on favors this winter in the northern cities.

At the coming out ball of Miss Adelaide Randolph, the favors cost $4,000. It will be remembered that the ball was given several weeks ago at Sherry's by the debutant's step-father, Mr. William C. Whitney. These favers are sometimes works of art, while nearly always the individual taste is used, that of a debutant, whose father was a great sportsman, being for the men, hanusome jointed fishing-rods, with silken lines and silver hooks, which they cast among the fair dancers, the one on whom the silver hook fell being his partner to supper.

Among the visitors on the floor at the Richmond german were Mrs. Henry Fairfax, Miss Elizabeth Swift, of Wilmington, Del.; Miss Alice Bolling, of Kentucky; Miss Sue Tunstall, of Washington; Miss Lee, of Alexandria; Miss Ida Kiely, of Washington, Miss May Waring, of Plain. Lee, of Alexandria; Miss Ida Klely, of Washington; Miss May Waring, of Plainfield, N. J.: Miss Haxall Noland, of Loudoui; Miss Hartman, of Baltimore; Miss Koarny, of New York; Miss Berni Prince, of Courtland, Va.: Mrs. Henry Stuart, of Russell county; and Miss Harriet Curtls, of Boston.

Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson is a guest of Mrs. J. Allison Hodges, and attracted a brilliant audience at the Woman's Club last night, when he spoke on "The United States as a World Power." He was greeted warmly at the reception which was given in his honor by his hostess, after the lecture.

Talking about Hobson, I read in a paper this week of a Wellesley girl which intertained at a table party which in the school-girl's dictionary means spread, these parties being given in honor of some special celebration or birth-day of one of its number. At a recent one the girls appeared in costume, and represented noted characters before the eyes of the public. Captain Hobson was there, whether he knew it or not, and looked well in white which is resulted by Mrs. Henry Williams, at which game Mrs. Virginius Hall came off victorious, if at the wrong was and carried away an Indian bowl.

knew it or not, and looked well in white stuck trousers and regulation naval bloose, and smiled graciously when Mrs. Hanna, Mrs. George Childs and Mrs. Dewey entered the dining-room. After the dinner healths were drank, and a teast given to Captain 1105son, in pink lemonade, and there are those who claim that the response made by this oistinguished guest was so elequent that the real person himself might have been congratulated proposition.

The card players' memory was frozen the past week like the elements, judging from he many ties which resulted at the conclusion of hard-played games. Only one of the numerous clubs postponed its meeting until this week, and that was the Emma Andrews Whist that was the Emma Andrews Whist Club, which got crowled out in the bus; rush of Friday preparatory to the French Salon that night. Charity! Charity! How loud has been the cry during the last week, but how many delightful entertainments hast then called forth in thy name. King's Daughters. Presbyterians and Episcopalians have listened to thy cry and added greatly to thy treasury.

Among the entertainments given in thy name was the musical at Monumental Church Tuesday, when Miss Morgan delighted her hearers and brought forth an encore, which was responded to by imitating a baby. Mrs. Cadot also delighted her hearers when she sang "The Dying Rose."

In the middle of the week we were threatened by a luncheon craze, but owing to the weather it lived but one short day, and then the hostesses were Mrs. Frank Crump, Mrs. E. A. Saunders and Mrs. Henry Cannon. At one of the delightful social functions the name cards were of hand-painted Japanese lanterns, which were swung on boughs of trees, tossed in the air, and laying on the ground, as was the wish of the brush, which was under the skillful handling of the hostess and her mother.

Still the tea craze reigns. But an un-usual thing, was, perhaps, that one and all during the week were of a pink color scheme, pink shaded lamps and tapers, pink roses and carnations greeting one on all sides. But still after all, it makes

There was a distinctly Old World flavor, says the New York Tribune, about the musical given by Mrs. Trenor Park last night at Sherry's, the concert being preceded by a supper. Not only was the programme composed almost entirely of eighteenth and early nineteenth century music, but David Bispham, the solo artist, and the members of the Walter Damrosch and the members of the Walter Damrosch Orchestra were costumed after the style of one hundred year's ago. The attendants were similarly attired, and the programmes, dated 1802, were printed on large square sheets of paper that had apparently become yellowed by age, the type and the wording being thoroughly old fashioned. The programme was as follows:
